Yadunandan
Center for India Studies
California State University, Long Beach

"The Reluctant Engineer and Other Tales from the India Tech Diaspora"

Presented by

Dr. Sareeta Amrute

University of Washington

Wed. Feb. 21, 2018

5:00pm – 7:00pm

LA3 - 120

Sareeta Amrute is a scholar of digital technologies, labor, and equality. She is currently Associate Professor of Anthropology at the University of Washington, Seattle. Her first book, Encoding Race, Encoding Class: Indian IT Workers in Berlin was published in 2016 by Duke University Press and has received the Diana Forsythe Prize for the best book in anthropology on work, science, and/or technology. In addition to developing ethical principles for technologists, Sareeta is interested in humor, rage, and all the emotions in between that digital technologies currently elicit.