

Seventh Annual MAPR Graduate Student Research Symposium

April 19th, 2018

Psychology Department, Room 332

12:30pm-3:15pm

You are cordially invited to attend a research symposium presented by the first-year MAPR graduate students as part of their Research Methods seminar where they will be presenting their proposed research.

We are looking forward to seeing you there and appreciate your continued support of our graduate students!

Research Symposium Schedule
Time	Presenter	Title of Presentation	Research Mentor
12:30pm – 12:45pm	Opening Remarks
12:45pm – 1:00pm	Peter Dinh	The Role of Gender and Culture on Avoidance Coping Use in Korean Immigrants Living in U.S.	Chi-Ah Chun, Ph.D.
1:00pm – 1:15pm	Angela Hart	The Social Reactions of Mexican-American Friends and Family in Response to Abuse Disclosure	Courtney Ahrens, Ph.D.
1:15pm – 1:30pm	Zachary Tuttle	Comparing the Effectiveness of Dual-Task Training to Single-Task Training in Fall Prevention Interventions: The Moderating Effect of Depression	Young-Hee Cho, Ph.D.
1:30pm – 1:45pm	Shar Alam	Science-Related Gender Identity, Interpersonal Concerns, and Sense of Belonging among Female STEM Students	Gino Galvez, Ph.D.
1:45pm – 2:00pm	Olivia Silke	The Effects of Maternal Mindful Disposition on Maternal and Infant Alpha Amylase and Cortisol Levels	Guido Urizar, Ph.D.
2:00pm – 2:15pm	Daniela Franco	The Potential Side Effects of Early-Life Ketamine Administration	Arturo Zavala, Ph.D.
2:15pm – 2:30pm	Alissa Vandenberg	Is It Better to Have Loved? Investigating Relationship Type, Relationship Quality, and Stress Overload	James Amirkhan, Ph.D.
2:30pm – 2:45pm	Dacey Bashaw	The Effect of Type of Target and Collective Rumination on Triggered Displaced Aggression	William Pedersen, Ph.D.
2:45pm – 3:00pm	Joshua Lozano	The Impact of Resource Inequality and Rumination on Retributive Justice	William Pedersen, Ph.D.
3:00pm – 3:15pm	Closing Remarks		