

LANGUAGE & SOCIAL JUSTICE IN ITALY

FALL 2013
SPRING 2014

This lecture series explores the intersection of language teaching, learning, and writing with the study of political movements and minority/disadvantaged groups.

The scholars featured here have found in Italy's changing demographics a rich site for the study of language as a marker of evolving social structures, institutions and practices. Their work will shed light on the Italian context as well as provide a stimulating lens through which to analyze parallel issues in contemporary American/Californian language politics.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6 | AS 384, 2:30 pm
KIM POTOWSKI, University of Illinois, Chicago
Language and Social Justice in Northern Italy: The Education of Spanish-Speaking Immigrants

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12 | AS 384, 6:00 pm
MARCO JAQUEMET, University of San Francisco
Communicative Breakdowns in Asylum Hearings

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19 | AS 384, 6:00 pm
HEATHER LOYD, Kansas State University
Growing up Fast: The Rhetoric of Resilience among Inner City Neapolitan Girls

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 | AS 384, 6:00 pm
SABINA PERRINO, University of Michigan
"Extracomunitari" and Italy's Lega Nord: Dialect, Revitalization, and Citizenship in the Veneto

THE GEORGE L. GRAZADIO
CENTER FOR ITALIAN STUDIES

Presented by

The College of Liberal Arts Scholarly Intersections Initiative | The Department of Anthropology |
The Department of Linguistics | The Department of Romance, German, Russian Languages and Literatures